TRIUMPHAL ARCHES

A favorite application of the arch was the triumphal arch, adorned with sculptures and covered with inscriptions, spanning a street, as if it were a city gate. Among the more famous structures of this kind in Rome were the ARCHES OF TITUS, TRAJAN, ANTONINUS, and, later of CONSTANTINE

CLEANDER was executed

Cleander's downfall came during a severe shortage of grain. The populace thought he bought up all the grain. The real culprit was probably grain commissioner PAPIRIUS DIONYSIUS.

The result was a riot in the Col Circus Maximus. The enraged crowd then marched south on the Via Appia toward the Villa Quinctillii 4 mi from the city, where Commodus was staying & demand Cleander's Execution.

Cleander ordered the cavalry to drive the crowds back to Rome, but when they reached the city itself, the soldiers lost the upper hand. They were attacked from the rooftops and the urban cohorts joined in on the side of the people. At this point Commodus summoned Cleander & had him executed. The crowd was delighted & carried his head around on a pole.
Commodus returned to Rome & was greeted by the cheering populace
